

Brandon Taylor, Program Manager, Trust for Public Land

Brandon Taylor is a Program Manager with The Trust for Public Land. In his current role, he manages the design development and construction for schoolyard and park projects, while also leading the initial participatory design and community engagement efforts. Prior to joining the Trust for Public Land in 2017, he served as a project manager for the Local Initiatives Support Corporation, managing home repair projects in the NYC Build It Back improvement program, as well as liaising with local CDCs on program outreach and capacity building.